Ariel

Ariel is curious and compassionate with a wild imagination. She loves telling stories and exploring the world around her.

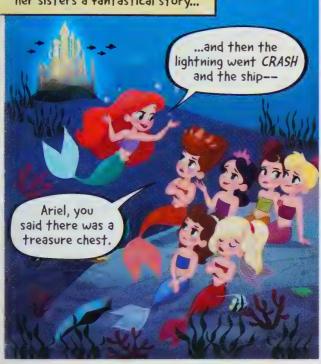

Ariel's six older sisters are each unique in their own way. They are caring, thoughtful, and kind. They look after each other and have a strong sense of family.

One day in Atlantica, Ariel is telling her sisters a fantastical story...

I'm getting there, Attina! A chest full of sparkly jewels spilled out of the ship!

When did this happen?

T'm thinking never.

What Happens Next?

Ariel and Spike have now become the best of friends—but in this story, we only hear about the beginning of their friendship. Can you think of some more adventures Ariel, her sisters, and Spike go on next? Do they explore deeper into the caves? Or do they search for treasure on sunken ships? The possibilities are as vast as the sea! What will you think of?

Scavenger Hunt!

Ariel and her sisters experienced a lot in this story—excitement, fear, and joy! But sometimes it's the little things that we often forget.

Can you find these pictures of Ariel, her sisters, and Spike?

What Sea Animal Am I?

For this activity, you'll need a partner!

Imagine yourself as a sea animal. Maybe you're a fish, a clam, or a whale! The ocean is deep and expansive, so there are many animals to choose from! Once you've picked your animal, keep it a secret from your partner! They are going to try to guess what kind of animal you are!

Once you've picked your sea animal, your partner can start asking you questions about yourself, until they can guess what animal you are. But, here's the hard part: you can only answer questions with "yes," "no," or "I don't know."

Below are a few examples of questions your partner might ask you!

- Do you have a shell?
- Do you have fins?
- * Do you eat plankton?

Once your partner has successfully guessed what you are, swap roles! Have your partner imagine they are a type of aquatic animal and give you some hints!

Make an Acrostic Poem!

What exactly is an acrostic poem? This type of poem uses each of the letters in a topic word to begin each line of a poem. The lines of this poem can be sentences, or phases, or single words—but each line must describe or relate to the topic word.

Now that you know a little about acrostic poems, let's create some! You can try it here (or on a separate piece of paper) using the names of the characters from the story as topic words!

A CGR

Using each letter in Ariel's name, think of one word that starts with that letter that could describe her.

Ariel has six older sisters: Aquata, Andrina, Arista, Attina, Adella, and Alana. With so many sisters, they can sometimes be difficult to tell apart. Try creating an acrostic poem for each of the sisters' names.

Turning these names into acrostic poems gives them a lot more meaning!
What other names could you try this game with?
Perhaps try it with your own name?

What's Missing from the Picture?

Look at the two pictures on these pages of Ariel and her sisters under the sea. It's the same picture . . . or is it? Can you spot 10 differences between picture A, and picture B? There are some things missing!
